inspiring strains of Pederaen-Sim's band.

It was a motley collection, but some prominent figures soon gained and held the attention. Among the beautiful costumes were noticeable those of Miss Jessis Boyd as "Free Silver," Mme. Rhineas Queen Mary, Miss Lottle Matson as the "Butterfiy" and Miss Mamic Gintrop. The grotesque figures of clowns and devils came in for their share of attention. Two young men were conspicuous badges, one bearing the legend "Is it clear in the east?" the other, "It is still cloudy in the west." Probably a closer examination would have revealed the three pins. A uncanny role that was well sustained was that of the "kicleton" by D. A. Marion, Mrs. Ernest brookbank's, "Haidees' was a pretty and clever conception, as were Mrs. Moore's flower girl and Miss Careless' Folly. The three Topsies created much merriment, as did the schoolboy and the Irish girl. But the chief interest centered in "Grover Cleveland," as impersonated by Max Horman. The portly figure encased in a corduroy suit, with high boots and a helmet cap, was recognized at once, especially with a fishing pole for identification. A huge copy of "My message" protruded from one of the capacious pockets. On his back was a placard bearing the inscription, "I can't stay in Washington. I must go fishing." A roil of papers bearing the name of Huzzard's letter was also conspicuous.

the expactions pockets. On his back was a piscard bearing the inscription, "I can't stay in Washington. I must go fishing." A roll of papers cearing the name of Huzsard's letter was also conspicuous. Occasionally the great man would drop his fishing pole and scribble a few words on his message. Some indians created much commessent by executing a war dance in a very realistic style.

At 11 o'clock the maskers were requested to repeat the grand march that the judges might have every opportunity to make just decisions.

Not the least amusing feature of the evening's fun was the sight of ex-Governor Thomas, Colonel S. A. Merrit, C. P. Mason, A. E. Welby and David McKenzie reviewing the small, nondescript army. Their faces were as grave as though some serious affair of state were under consideration.

The prize winners were called to the platform and asked to unmask as their names were announced.

"Free Silver" won the day. Missueshis Goyd was he fortunate winner of the World's fair ticket, the prize offereby Mr. J. H. Bennett, on behalf of the Roll Grande Western, to the best sustained general character. The prize of 20 to the most altractively attired lady in fancy dress was awarded to Maud Crosby, whose picturesque Indian costume was much admired. The prize of the same amount to the best costumed gentleman in oharacter was awarded to Ed Witcher who was a great success as an Indian chief. "Ursh Heep" was considered the most striking figure in the Dickens' group, and Harry Horsley received $10 for being properly "umble." W. H. Guiver received the prize of $10 for the best typical farmer. The three Topsies were appropriately costumed and their antics would have delighted Mrs. Stowe herself, but there seamed to be a shade of difference and that in favor of Mrs. Nettle Lunnen. Sine received a prize of $2.

copal church was conducted by Rev. Frederick Norris, rector of St. Mark's cathedral. A squad of Indian solders then fired a salute, taps were sounded, and the soldiers returned to the fort.

Several citizens were present at the funeral, and the Indians were deeply impressed with the services. Bearbeel was a remarkably intelligent Indian, and was very popular with his comrades. He was a direct descendent of the highest chiefs in the Sioux tribe, and in line of the chieftainship of the Two Kettle branch of the Brute or Rosebud Sioux.

He was well educated in English, kind hearted, and ever willing to extend a helping fund to those in need of it.

The exquisite music discoursed by the regimental bund yesterday was the subject of favorable comment by all who heard it.

The dancing continued until 2 o'clook this morning.

Among the interested spectators were J. H. Beanet, thet generous giver of the chief prize, and a party of his friends who accompanied Mr. Bennett to the beach in his private car.

The masque ball is over, but the big day is yet to come. The territorial bicycle tournamont, Aug. 31, promises to eclipse all former gaia days, and everyone who has a bicycle is eligible to context for any of the many prizes.

The bicycle military drill will be something grand and a novelty never before produced in this country. The drill consists of sixteen ladies and sixteen gentlemen, among the best riders found. The drill is under command of Captain W. W. Hall.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT.

Joseph Patrick Falls from a Train at Saltair.

A serious accident occurred at Saltair hast night. Joseph Patrick, who had been watching the dancers in the pavillion, tried to get on the train leaving the beach at 10 o'clock while it was in motion, and caught hold of the guard on the third car from the rear, but missed his footing and was thrown violently to thee platform, his left ankle striking the battoms step and injuring it quite seriously. Dr. Groves chanced to be present, and he bandaged the wounded imb, and Mr. Patrick was then placed imb, and he bandaged the wounded imb, and he bandaged the wounded imb, and he proported that the wheels had passed over the limb, and that simputia.

Moran—All right if the chair does not have the appointing of the committee. I beg to submit five names as a committee to investigate.

Evans vacated the chair in favor of Rich, and made a hot speech, denouncing Moran for objecting to his appointing the investigating committee.

Moran—I did not mention you at all.

The chair—Mr. Moran, Mr. Evans has the chair.

The chair—Mr. Moran, Mr. Evans has the chair.

Lawson, Evans and Moran all endeavored to talk at once, and the chair rapped loudly for order and ruled that Evans had the floor, who continuing, said he did not come here to be insulted by any member. Somebody wanted to create a grand uphaval here and he objected to his honor and integrity being impugned. Moran explained it was not because he distrusted Evans. He made the motion and wanted a committee who would do justice to the investigation.

Lawson—I will bring in resolutions myself some night which will impugn the honesty of a good many people. No one should be condemned on suspicion. Let them have a trial. I belong to no church and no secret society, but I believe in charity and fair play.

The names handed in by Moran as inquisitors were Wantland, Rich, Simondi, Hora and Hardy, and their appointment carried; Kelly dissenting on the ground that the accessed should be tried by their persa—all Liberals.

Rich—Do you mean to say the non-Liberal members of that committee are not the peers of any man in this council? Kelly—Politically they are not.
